I won't be the first to tell you that I'm discovering amazing new things everyday. It's true! I find something new everyday, and it's always fascinating. One of the most recent discoveries was the 2009 Crack by Grand Robert Et Collins - an old whiskey which was brought out for the first time in years, only to sell out in minutes. The release of this whiskey caught many people off guard - including me! Luckily, I did not miss my chance at buying some delicious old whiskey by waiting too long. Before I could even order my bottle, it was sold out. I couldn't believe it - how could this happen? I did some research, and it turns out the release was limited to one hundred bottles. I don't know how many people were lucky enough to buy the whiskey before me, but I'm glad to say that I definitely was one of them! To make matters even better, my one hundred dollars bought me not only three bottles of incredible high-proof whiskey which is over ten years old, but also a signed copy of Grand Robert Et Collins 2009 Crack , which lists all information about this rare whiskey. I've never seen a whiskey bottle signed by the distillery, let alone one with the owner's name. This whiskey is an absolute masterpiece. The nose has a warm, toffee-like smell, accompanied by notes of oak and vanilla. The taste starts off with a sweet cotton candy tone, then gives way to caramel sweetness at the end. It lasts for quite some time on the palate. This whiskey is probably one of the most affordable rare liquors on the market, and it's definitely worth every cent! The addition of a signed book makes it even more special - I've honestly never seen such an amazing add-on to a product before. Now that I'm done describing how wonderful this whiskey is, I can get to the main point: why did people label this whiskey so well if they were going to sell out in minutes? I think all we need to know about Grand Robert Et Collins 2009 Crack is in the label: " One of One Hundred Bottles. The First and Last . " The label tells us all we need to know about this unique whiskey. It says the whiskey is unique because it only came out in one hundred bottles. It also tells us that there are no more bottles to come, which gives the whiskey a sense of exclusivity. Finally, note that Grand Robert Et Collins 2009 Crack is called "The First and Last" - "First" because it was the first time this particular whiskey has been brought out to sell, and "Last" because it's the last time there will ever be more of this particular bottle for sale. As I said before, I'm very happy with my one hundred Dollar bill purchase.
